

Extreme in Action: Cameras Aid Criminal Prosecution in New York

BOSCH
Invented for life

“The EX36 and WZ20 cameras have enabled me to collaborate with integrators at these municipalities and deliver effective video surveillance in the most challenging areas.”

David Gonzalez, Director of Business Development for Tri-Ed / Northern Video Distribution

Customer: New York City Agencies & Authorities

Sector: Government

Products: EX36 Corner-mount No-grip Cameras & WZ20 Day/Night Bullet Cameras

Problem: Delivering Prosecutable Evidence under Challenging Lighting Conditions

There has been a high volume of criminal activity around the perimeter of developments and in elevators operated by New York City Municipalities. It has not been easy in the New York Area, explains David Gonzalez, Director of Business Development for Tri-Ed / Northern Video Distribution:

“Low to no lighting around the perimeters makes them prime targets for criminals at night. NYC Agencies & Authorities have been concerned with security issues in elevator cabs as well, since cameras were easily and quickly vandalized in such environments. The NYC Agencies & Authorities were looking to install a cutting-edge surveillance system that would operate well under poor lighting conditions and in vandal prone areas to help them successfully prosecute criminal offenders.”

Solution: Corner-mount No-grip and Bullet Cameras

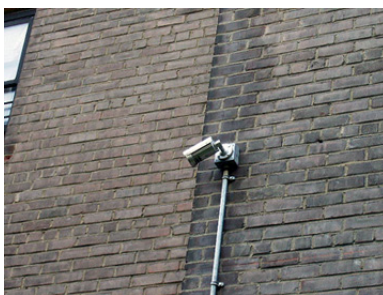

The Bosch Extreme series Corner-mount No-grip and Bullet Cameras are precision engineered to deliver video suitable for prosecution in tough environments and under poor lighting conditions.

- The EX36 cameras’ steel construction protects against even the most brutal attempts to destroy, detach or disable the camera
- WZ20 bullet cameras deliver 150ft (45m) of high-performance night vision in 0 lux environments

Results: Cameras are an Indispensable Duo for Criminal Prosecutions

David Gonzalez discovered that the WZ20 Bullet Cameras reliably captured high-quality images suitable for prosecution under poor lighting conditions, while the Bosch Corner-mount No-grip Cameras were highly resistant to vandalism.

“The Agencies & Authorities are now able to work with police departments and district attorneys to successfully prosecute criminal activities at their buildings and developments.”

EX36 and WZ20 cameras provide surveillance of criminal activities in New York City.
